Additional New Market Access Benefits for U.S. Exporters

Agriculture: TPP will provide new and commercially meaningful market access for U.S. exports of food and agricultural products; eliminate the use of agricultural export subsidies; discourage countries from imposing export restrictions; and ensure food safety, animal health, and plant health measures are developed and implemented transparently and in a science-based manner.

Services: TPP will expand market access and investment opportunities in a number of services sectors, including entertainment, telecommunications, software licensing, internet industries, retailing, and logistics/express delivery. TPP will bar discrimination against digital provision of services and prevent customs duties on electronic transmissions.

TPP Saves Money, Increases Competitiveness

Labor Establishes enforceable obligations, including adherence to fundamental labor rights as recognized by the International Labor Organization. (IL0)

Government Procurement Develops rules to ensure that U.S. private sector businesses and workers are able to compete on fair terms with SOEs engaged in commercial activity. These include ensuring that SOE commercial purchases and sales take place on the basis of commercial considerations and those SOEs and designated monopolies do not discriminate against U.S. enterprises, goods, and services. TPP also guarantees that U.S. SOEs providing public services continue to operate without interference.

Intellectual Property Rights TPP establishes strong and balanced protections for patents, trademarks, copyrights, and trade secrets, including safeguards against cyber theft of trade secrets, as well as robust enforcement that will protect innovation and the 40 million American jobs that are directly or indirectly tied to innovation. TPP goes beyond past trade agreements to require partner countries to criminalize the theft, including cyber theft, of trade secrets. Similarly, enhanced protection and enforcement tools for chemical patents and trademarks will give exporters greater assurances that their innovations and brands are secure in TPP markets.

Market Opportunity Spotlights

Auto Parts

The United States exports nearly $1.4 billion in auto parts to TPP markets each year. These exports face tariffs as high as 32% in Vietnam. At the same time, competing auto parts made in China face lower—or even zero—tariffs in Malaysia and Vietnam as a result of trade agreements China has with those countries. Under TPP, 98.1% of U.S. auto parts exports will be eligible for immediate duty-free treatment into the new TPP markets, and all remaining tariffs will be eliminated over time.

Construction Equipment

Although Vietnam is currently a small market for U.S. construction equipment exports by volume, it is an attractive market for U.S. construction equipment manufacturers because of its growth potential and strong demand. The United States exported $374 million in construction machinery to Vietnam in 2014, a 5.5% percent increase from 2012. In Vietnam, U.S. machinery competes with lower-cost, less-efficient, and less-reliable Chinese products. The high tariffs on U.S. construction equipment manufacturers face in Vietnam—up to 40 percent—have been prohibitive, while their Chinese competitors face significantly lower tariffs. Thanks to ongoing trade negotiations between Vietnam and the United States, these tariffs through TPP will be eliminated, leveling the playing field and further increase the scope and nature of competition.
